McLAREN F1

If there is one car that best represents the past, present, and future of the automobile, it is the McLaren F1. The McLaren F1 is the result of an uncompromising pursuit to create the perfect car – a Formula 1 for the road and the brainchild of one of the great minds in the history of automotive design. In its concept and execution, the F1 is unlike any other production road car – a unique stroke of genius that leaves a significant impression to this day. Nearly three decades after it was introduced, it remains the benchmark by which all other sports cars are judged. Chassis 028 was supplied by McLaren to Michael Andretti, forming part of his compensation package when he signed a deal to drive for them for the 1993 and 1994 seasons. Michael's signature can still be seen on the back of the central sun-visor. It is the only surviving F1 to leave the factory in red.
